AURORA, CO, APRIL 27, 2009: Wilderdest Logistics Solutions, Inc. a leader in providing logistical and transportation services, today announced that it has been recognized by the Colorado Convention Center, the Department of Environmental Health and the City of Denver Mayor's Office for participating in the anti-idling campaign, Engines Off! By committing to and upholding to the City of Denver's idling ordinance of five minutes or less, Wilderdest Logistics is helping to improve the City's air quality, general health and is saving important resources such as fuel and money.

Wilderdest Logistics was recognized along with other local and national transportation leaders at a Transportation Forum. "Initiatives such as Engines Off demonstrates what can be achieved when coalitions of diverse partners work in mutual interest for a cleaner, healthier Colorado", said Tom Cagney, CEO of Wilderdest Logistics. "Everyone benefits." The forum honored all businesses that supported the Engines Off pledge. About Engines OFF

Engines Off is the Denver Department of Environmental Health's city-wide anti-idling campaign with the goals of improving air quality and reducing greenhouse gas emissions. Idling vehicles in Denver are responsible for 9,000 tons of air pollution and over 100,000 tons of CO2 emissions every year. The City and County of Denver's idling ordinance limits idling to 5 minutes in most situations to help reduce air pollution (in addition to the air ordinance, for safety reasons Denver Police can ticket vehicles left idling for any duration if they are left unattended). The goal of the Engines Off campaign is to foster voluntary behavior change so that enforcement is only necessary as a last resort. Engines Off is made possible by Federal Congestion Mitigation and Air Quality (CMAQ) grant funds received through the Colorado Department of Transportation.
